Self-Management And Recovery Training

Almost everyone knows of someone who is affected, either directly or indirectly, by a harmful addiction. For example, the National Institute on Alcohol and Alcohol Abuse has reported that 1 in every 13 adults abuse alcohol.

Please help these people by the sharing of this brochure, which contains information about the science-based and secular self-help group SMART Recovery®, along with any other people who might be interested or should know about this program, i.e. doctors, other health care professionals and clergy.

How is SMART Recovery[®] different?

SMART Recovery[®] builds its program on rigorously tested scientific methods accepted in modern psychology, particularly with Cognitive-Behavioral techniques, Rational Emotive Behavior Therapy (REBT) principles and the non-confrontational principles of Motivational Enhancement Therapy.

We also hold that a person's spiritual convictions and religious beliefs are a deeply personal matter. Spirituality may be helpful for some, but they are not a "requirement" of our program.

Does this program work?

Yes! If you're willing to work hard and persistently at helping yourself, the tools and techniques offered through the SMART Recovery[®] program can make your efforts more productive.

How does SMART Recovery[®] work?

In our friendly, small group settings, we talk freely, sharing ideas, support and experience. We learn proven, practical self-management and recovery skills through these discussions and self-help activities.

We also learn specific methods for each task of the SMART Recovery[®] 4-Point Program[™] to:

- ◆ Enhance and maintain motivation to abstain
- ◆ Cope with urges
- ◆ Manage thoughts, feelings and behavior
- ◆ Balance momentary and enduring satisfactions

Can I "use" socially?

We believe a permanent abstinence decision can be a rational, easy and hassle-free solution to addiction. With the use of the right tools and skills, most people can quit without a lifelong struggle and dependency on a group. However, we view sobriety as a personal choice and relapse as a learning opportunity.

Is this something new?

SMART Recovery[®] includes ideas that go back to ancient Greek philosophers and the Rational Emotive Behavior Therapy of Dr. Albert Ellis. The methods in our toolbox of techniques have been carefully tested and found effective for many individuals over the years. These powerful practices and ideas, learned and discussed in an encouraging, friendly and supportive environment, form the foundation for our self-help groups.
